Alexander Joehl

Having moved to Murrayville three years ago with my wife and son, I have learned to love the Township and want to share it with everyone.

There currently is a housing scarcity and the best way to achieve more affordable housing is to build homes and drive down the market prices. However, building without a plan is hazardous and can lead to more “208th Street” debacles. We need to invest in infrastructure, using the capital works budget, to ensure that we have roads, parks, and schools in place before the homes go up. Development is a dirty word in the Township, but it doesn’t have to be.

As our population grows, we should ask ourselves if the RCMP is the right choice. Statistics show that local municipal police forces perform better than the RCMP in Metro Vancouver, so we owe it to ourselves to at least look into that option.
